Abstract Nineteen species of Selaginellaceae are enumerated from Japan, with their synonyms and information of their distribution range: Selaginella boninensis, S. daviddii, S. doederleini, S. flagellifera, S. helvetica, S. heterostachys, S. involvens, S. leptophylla, S. limbata, S. lutchuenensis, S. moellendorffii, S. nipponica, S. remotifolia, S. selaginoides, S. shakotanensis, S. sibirica, S. tama-montana, S. tamariscina, and S. uncinata. The related literature for the recognition of each species in Japan, information from distribution maps, chromosome numbers and photographs of spores from Japanese materials are cited.

Key words: Selaginella, enumeration, Japan.

The present paper is planned along the same lines as my previous work (Nakaike 1975, 1996). Its chief aim is to clarify the taxa of Japanese Selaginellaceae, their scientific names, and the history of recognition of each taxon in Japan. In addition to this, the synonyms are also listed. The literature on the distribution and synonyms of each species is cited from the Old and the New World. The chromosome numbers and photographs of spores are also cited from observations of Japanese materials.

In this paper, nineteen species of the genus Selaginella, which is the sole component of the family Selaginellaceae, are enumerated. The species are arranged in alphabetical order in species epithets.
